

Rolland, you are such a rare, witty, and honest writer! You bring us with you on every page.”
?Deborah Shouse?????? Special to The Kansas City Star “BORN DEAD ON A WINTERS NIGHT IS AN AWESOME MEMOIR!” Mary-Lane Kamberg, Best selling author
<http://www.kansascitywriters.com> I was born dead. In the dead of winter. Still as a stone. Blue as the smoky haze that sometimes settles on the Ozark Mountains. I know because my mother, Helen Love, my father Ray Love and Aunt Maude told me so. I can only imagine the scene: Doc Barnes, a tall rugged-looking man with bushy white hair, worked frantically when he realized there was trouble. His white shirt covered in blood and the flickering light of a kerosene lamp added ghost-like dimension to the scene. Cold enough to see your breath, the only source of heat came from a cast iron wood-burning stove in the living room. I was saved because Doc carried me outside and rolled me in snow that covered the ground from a midwinter storm. The cold caused me to take a breath and I began to cry. Born Dead on a Winter’s Night is a 36,000-word memoir about growing up in Missouri’s rugged Ozark Mountains in the 1940s and 1950s. It’s a collection of essays recalling what life was like living off the land in a self-sufficient family. By others’ standards we were poor, but we had everything we needed. I spent my days fishing, floating the rivers, and narrowly escaping encounters with poisonous snakes. Enjoyed by all ages. ?? REVIEWS: Travel back to a time when families were self-sufficient and lived off the land. This memoir has the feel of a Mark Twain story, with tales of pigs and possums and adventures in the caves and on the rivers of the Ozark Mountains.” Mary-Lane Kamberg Best selling author
<http://www.kansascitywriters.com> “Rolland the, philosophical fisherman, hits many marks with his true story. Readers cannot help but return to their youth as they read of Rolland’s experiences and insights. Nature, adventure, danger, and wisdom earned and learned. Born Dead has it all! Sam Giordano, Health Care Consultant, “Your story is unique. The style of writing makes it hard to stop reading. It flows from one vivid image to another. It should be a quick, enjoyable read for all ages. Youre a natural storyteller who has a huge library of stories. It must be a lot of fun to write this book.” Scott Mansker, History Teacher, founder of MR-340 longest canoe/kayak race in the world
<http://www.kansascity.com/news/local/article29101705.html> “Rolland has a wonderful way of bringing one back to simpler times and making you feel as if you were there. Poignant and at times humorous, this story of growing up in the Ozarks is a lovely account of days gone by.” Janet Chandler, RN, mom, wife, dog lover in Boston “Rolland, the way you write makes me feel like I’m along on the journey with you.” Jeannie Evans, Social Worker. Author of beautiful things. “I found your memoir very interesting and fun to read. Those of all ages should love your stories. The title “Born Dead on a Winter’s Night” is great. I think the chapters would be excellent resources for the classroom/children activities. Kids would be captivated.” Michael G. Gerken, Author Creating a culture of Valued Leadership Complete strangers had this to say only 10 days after publication of “BORN DEAD ON A WINTERS NIGHT” ??...
